It turnishes the news telegrams of the New York Associated Press and of Meuter's European scency, being, with but three exceptions, the only pager between Baltimore and Richmond that is has connected with the great fountsins of the votid s hews.

What Language did Christ Speak ? As to the lauguage spoken by Jesus, we must remember that in his time not one but three languages were in use in Judea. The pure He brew had long before died out and been succeeded by the Aramaic, which was a kindred language, rec ivedfrom the Babylonian corquer ore. This was spoken by the peacantry and lower classes. Latin was used by the Roman officials in all formal proceedings. Greek was employed by the upper classes, by merchants, and by most of the jubabitants of cities. Hence the superscription on the cross was written, as we are told by Luke, in Greek and Latin and Hebrew. That Greek was extensively employed is rove by the fact that all the apostolic ensiles were witten in Greek, and that Penl's discourses were delivered in Greek, except upon one occ :sion, when it is expressly mentioned that he ar rested the attention of a Jewish mob by sneak ieg to them is the common tongue. Greek ws , in those days, what the lingus franca is n w in Oriental counties bordering on the Mediterrasean-the medium of intercourse between people of different nationalties. It was more than this. It was like French among the Europeaus of the last century. All the noble Roman youth learned to read, write and speak Greek, and on coession even the debates of the Roman Senate were carried on in Greek. At all events, Greek must have been spoken by the Saviour, as least a part of the time, for the coasion on which he used Aramaic words are sorcially mentioned, as for instance, in raising the de-d girl, in opening the dumb man's mouth, and when he uttered his lest words on the cross. If all his sayings bad been in Aramaic, these special phrases would probably not have been singled out as they w re, and the interpretation of them given ie Gre k. O' course, when he spoke to the pessantry and rustics he generally us d the language with which they were familiar, and which was, as I have said, Aramaic. The case may be illustrated by that of a Cathe olic missionary in Wales or in a remote district of France. In Wales he would speak English through to the weak, it corrects an irregular to the cities, and Welsh in the country and sold state of the stomach, makes the bowels act small towns. In France he would speak French t proper intervals gives ease to those who suf- in the cities, but elsewhere the peasant dialect, whatever it may be, of the locality which he was visiting and he might, for certain office proces, write decuments in Latin.-N. Y.

> MR. MOODY ON CHURCH FAIRS AND THEA-TRE-Going.-Daring his recent meeting in San Francisco Mr. Moody made answers to written questions that were submitted to him. We quote two of the questions and answers from the Watchman:

Q 18s. Do church f its and suppers help the figages of the church?

Ace. In the long run they don't; they burt them. I never knew a church fair in my life that some one didn't get his feelings hurt. I believe they grieve the most spiritual of every church, and you can't afford to grieve those who have the most power with God. They bring in a profane element. Man of the world -sooffers-will tell you they have paid fifty comes to help the church. They have probably paid fifty cints for an oyster stew that cost the church forty cents, and the Church of God has made ten cents on the operation. I think it is a very small business.

Then the way they are conducted is very objectionable. The idea that you can go around to the sanctuary, and by giving 25 cents vote who is the band-omest lady in town! And this in the house of God! I tell you we have gone so far in this respect that we don't know where we are. In one place I remember its being given out that ary man might go in and kiss the hand-omest woman there for 25 cents. And yet you wonder that the world scoffs at the church!

Ques. What do you think of a Christian's going to the theatr ? Aus. Go, if you cau do it for the glory of God. You can go to the theatre, dance, or ary hing else that you can do to the glory of God. That is the test. It you are stoder ly converted and filled with the regenerating in flo nee, you won't want to go. God don't set ary of these things before you and say you shall not go, but he offers you something better, so that you don't want them. I never desire these things, because God gives me something that makes me happier than they could, and if you are His child, you won't want the se things.
